Welcome to the Philippines

“Three excellent reasons you should come to Manila for the very first AiO Annual General Meeting.

Why should you come to the all-in-one logistics network meeting in Manila, Philippines? Here are three good reasons...

First of all, you don't want to miss history in the making. This is the very first meeting that our network will ever have. If you're a member of our group now and you miss this opportunity you'll be kicking yourself later. And I don't want you to kick yourself later. And any seasoned freight forwarding veteran knows that getting in on the ground floor of the network gets you the fast track to the cargo for years to come. It will be easier for you than it will be for those who come after you. So don't miss the event!

You will see exactly how rare it is to have so many different people from so many different backgrounds at the same place. There will be ample number of people in the commercial cargo, project cargo, removals cargo, perishables cargo in exhibition cargo worlds. You'll be hard put to find so many who are so accessible as this group will be. There will be all kinds of synergy that will come to the top during this event. You can mark my word on that!

There will be business opportunities for your company galore. All of the people who come to this first AGM are coming with the express interest in building up cargo. And they're going to be looking for somebody in your very location. You've joined the group now let the group work for you! Come and meet your network partners. You'll be ever so glad that you did so.”

About Manila, Philippines

The Philippines, officially known as the Republic of the Philippines, consists of more than 7,100 islands located in Southeast Asia nestled inside the South China Sea to the West (also known as the West Philippine Sea), the Pacific Ocean on the East, the Sulu Sea on the Southwest and the Celebes Sea to the South.

There are three main groups of islands: Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao. All of the islands feature beautiful beaches, palm trees, and wildlife. Some even have hills and mountains. Surrounding countries include Taiwan, China, Vietnam, Indonesia, and the U.S. territory of Guam.

The people of the Philippines represent a mixture of Eastern and Western cultures with strong Spanish and American influences. Although there are more than 50 dialects being used including Tagalog as the national language, English is well-spoken throughout the country by many people.

If you like big cities you'll love Manila: it's a high-speed, frenetic place, where you can eat, drink and shop 24 hours a day and where the Filipino heritage of native, Spanish, Chinese and American cultures are at their most mixed up. Like many capital cities, Manila bears little resemblance to the rest of the country – something to remember if this is your first taste of the Philippines.
