

2nd Annual General Meeting

Shangri-La Hotel, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

June 19-21st, 2016

Welcome To Malaysia

from Gary Dale Cearley,
AiO Logistics Network's Executive Director

"It is with great pleasure that I invite you to the 2016 annual general meeting for the All-in-One Network (AiO)! It will be at a great, tried and true, location at the Shangri-La Hotel in Kuala Lumpur, my favorite hotel in Malaysia.

To me the natural theme for this year is building.

We want to build upon the success that we had in Manila in 2015. In Manila we had members attend from all over the world. This year we at AiO will be focusing on even more markets to be represented in Kuala Lumpur who were not in Manila or were underrepresented. This will happen because, if you have noticed, we have been growing the world over. We will improve our meeting tools and agenda and will have even more interesting presentations. We also have a great venue picked out of our banquet dinner. You'll really love this one!

Most importantly we want to build upon the relationships made over the past year. This is the most important part of the event for all of us. When you build on the AiO relationships you grow your business and make long-term friendships around the world. Your business is bolstered and your own life is enhance.

I really look forward to seeing each and every one of you there and I always mean it when I say that. You have become a big part of our lives here at AiO. Seeing you all at our meeting to me will be better than Christmas. And I hope you'll feel the same!"

About Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

By design or lack of populace, Kuala Lumpur is Asia's green capital, where monkeys scamper close to skyscrapers and the occasional boa constrictor slithers across six-lane traffic. K.L. offers room to breathe and to contemplate the meeting of cultures. The automotive merry-go-round can feel too suburban and downtown can seem sterile, but turn a corner and streets burst into exoticism and a riot of night markets. A restive art scene, driven by Malaysians' ongoing quest for shared identity, gives K.L. further heft.

Revamped and revived as a huge gifts emporium, the Art Deco wet market, provides a focal point for piecing together K.L.'s past, taking in its current artsy-craftsy pulse and exploring nearby Chinatown. Better still is the Annexe, an alternative free space for the arts, hidden on the top of the market's small auxiliary building. On the ground floor, portraitists and street artists can be found — giving a dose of old-time character along the long-obscured riverfront.

Amid the many family-oriented attractions set within the vast British legacy of Lake Gardens, none compare in hands-on fun to what's billed as the "world's largest free-flight walk-in aviary," KL Bird Park. There you may chase peacocks and hornbills, pose with owls and parrots on one's shoulder, feed parakeets, watch ostriches lay eggs and be awed by soaring storks and flamingos in surroundings that hardly feel caged-in or too commercial.

One of Malaysia's most distinctive geographical features is the labyrinth of spooky caves found within the country's limestone abutments. K.L.'s biggest blasts of nature are the Batu Caves, whose awe-inspiring natural caverns are reachable by a test of 272 steps.

When enlightened developers decided to creatively jazz up the Solaris Dutamas housing complex, the result was an instant arts district. Still very much a work in progress, it's made up of a public piazza surrounded by several immense exhibition venues, rows of arty shops and MAP — an arts organization that runs a gallery and auditorium hosting K.L.'s ever irreverent theater, comedy and modern-dance regulars. Even the restrooms are being turned into conceptual works.

The expat nightlife strip of Bukit Ceylon features an ever changing selection of venues offering everything from English ale to Cuban mojitos. The scene is small enough that you can table-hop until dawn, but the only place that delivers consistently is No Black Tie, the city's singular spot for jazz, Brazilian funk, poetry and the occasional dose of Chopin. It's all presented in wood-panelled sophistication by owner, hostess and pianist Evelyn Hii, K.L.'s leading cultural maven.

What would a trip to Malaysia's capital be without gawking at its 88-story Petronas Twin Towers, designed to mirror the country's high-tech ambitions and fuse stainless steel with hints of the Moorish? But if the hazy views from the midlevel Skybridge aren't so thrilling, and the amazingly varied food courts in the Suria KLCC Mall get too packed, there's still a much neglected park all around. Best of all, is the acoustically sound Dewan Filharmonik Petronas, home to the Malaysian Philharmonic Orchestra. Compact in its splendor and tucked away in the Towers' bowels, it's a symbol of the hidden cultural riches of K.L., whether Tchaikovsky seems appropriate or not.

As you can see, there is an adventure awaiting for everyone if you have some free-time. Or, for those who wish simply to relax, there are parks, symphonies and the arts to enjoy!
